Post your hashtagged content at optimal times to ensure maximum visibility. After evaluating the performance of 100,000 posts around the world, we've compiled a chart below to help you find out the best posting times in TikTok. We noticed that the time to post to tikTok is influenced by two factors: 1. Audience location TikTok is used all over the world. Time zones control how well your content is received in a specific region. For example, if your followers are mainly based in Thailand, you must post at a time when Thai TikTokers is most active on the platform. TikTok allows you to Pro account for free, which offers analysis to your followers. You can access data such as gender splitting and location demographics. 2. Audience Awake Time If you know where the audience is located, find out the times when they are up and running. It's a little complicated. For example, if your audience is divided between the UK and Australia, there is about a nine-hour time difference between the two zones. You need to schedule your content so that you can reach audiences in both countries. Unfortunately, TikTok does not have a built-in scheduling feature. However, you can use social media mailing and scheduling tools that align your content in advance and automatically post it on time. Get the right mix of hashtags. Mix popular hashtags with lesser-known hashtags to get the best of both worlds. Popular hashtags have great search volume, but also great competition. You can hope to get noticed by narrow niche hashtags that are less competitive. Once you've gotten a good engagement in narrow audience segments, your ranking automatically rises to popular hashtags. Content hashtags will help your SEO efforts. People use product-specific keywords to search for related content on social platforms. If your hashtags contain the right keywords, your content will improve. Content hashtags may lack virality and creativity, such as branded or custom tags, but they can improve your content's search tension. You can choose product hashtags #shoes or #lipbalm products related to your niche and content. Very good choice, as #blackfriday and #thanksgiving. Don't forget to pair them with custom and branded labels. Hashtag challenges are a fun way to make your hashtags more popular. Think about the innovative challenge and create a hashtag for it. Ask people to upload videos and content and use their custom hashtags in captions. To serve more followers, invite participants to mark interested friends and followers. Create urgency by adding a time clause to the challenge and offering attractive benefits to the winners. You can also collaborate with TikTok influencers who help make your challenge viral. Take a hint from Guess. Their #inmydenim challenge was a big hit among denim lovers. The jeans brand called TikTokers to post their favorite denim looks and use the #inmydenim hashtag in their posts. Picture: TikTok Guess teamed up with influencers Chriss Kerr in Rio and Sharla May famously ourFire to spread the word about their challenge. Picture: The TikTok hashtag challenge helped Guess make inroads in the millennial market. Although the challenge began in 2018, it will continue to take on the views and activity on the platform. The hashtag became very popular across social media. Conclusion All in summary, investing time and effort in creating, curating and marketing hashtags can provide exponential returns. On a competition-ridden platform like TikTok, hashtags can make your content which can earn more followers and likes. In this article we have reviewed 120+ trending TikTok Hashtags. We have also added a tool that shows the most popular TikTok hashtags by country today. At the time of writing, the 20 most popular hashtags on TikTok were: #tiktok #foryoupage #fyp #foryou #viral #love #funny #memes #followme #cute #fun #music #happy #fashion #follow #comedy #bestvideo #tiktok4fun #thisis4u #loveyoutiktok Of course, these hashtags may not be relevant to your videos, so take a look at the most popular hashtags for your type of content. It is no surprise that the most widely used hashtag in TikTok is #tiktok. This is followed by two other TikTok-specific hashtags: #foryoupage and #fyp. Just as two hashtags connected to TikTok's For You page have made people hoping TikTok will succeed, #viral also used to increase video performance. The following few hashtags have relatively general descriptions of the content: #love, #funny and #memes. #followme is another less than subtle hashtag used by people trying to increase their follower numbers. The logical reason why so many people use hashtags on TikTok is that they work. They have two goals. First, they help group content so you can search for similar video types. Popular #funny and #memes are clear examples of this. Second, you can use them to group conversations in a topic. For example, an organization might create a custom hashtag for a challenge, and anyone who makes videos related to a challenge would use a hashtag. There are more than 120 trending hashtags listed in this article that can be used as a starting point if you are looking for a great hashtag tikTok. If you are interested in what is popular in your country, we have a tool that lists the most popular TikTok hashtags for the six countries. However, if you want to create a custom hashtag, you can use our TikTok Hashtag Generator. Don't forget to check out the hashtags your competitors use. As we have mentioned in this article, the easiest way to search for hashtags is to use our TikTok Hashtag Generator tool. Alternatively, you can go through the following steps: 1) Analyze the hashtags used for the content of your niche 2) Check out the hashtags your competitors are using 3) Create your own hashtag Alternatively, you can view one of the lists in this article and choose one or two relevant hashtags for one of them. As we've seen in this article, quite a few top TikTok hashtags are TikTok-specific. Two top hashtags directly related to TikTok's For You page: #foryoupage and #fyp. While it is true that many people use these terms to search for videos, it's debatable whether they really help their chances of TikTok feeding their video onto the People for You page. TikTok focuses more on the quality of your video and how your audience responds to it. it.
